6 June 2012

1340* UCT students to be capped this week

The University of Cape Town will confer two honorary doctorates and award 1340* degrees, including 44* PhD's, to students from six faculties during its three winter graduation ceremonies this week. This is a slight increase from the 1,336 students who graduated in June 2011 and the 1,293 of June 2010.

UCT will also confer two Creative Works Awards on Michaelis School of Fine Art's Emeritus Professor of History of Art, Michael Godby, and artist Professor Gavin Younge for their influential, creative, and scholarly works.

Godby will receive the award for The Lie of the Land – Representations of the South African landscape, an exhibition he curated in 2010 and 2011. The project was designed to showcase and celebrate a vigorous tradition of South African art, not only engaging with the role of land through South African history, but also clarifying the changing stylistic strategies for representing land at different points in South Africa's history.

Professor Younge will receive the award for his 2011 solo exhibition Cheval de Bataille, a project commissioned by the French Monuments Council which was housed in the Forteresse de Salses, a fortress in France that has run a vigorous contemporary art programme for many years.

*Please note that these figures and those in the table below represent graduation figures available at the time of going to print.
