UCT's Jammie Shuttle service returns to normal after strike ends
Please cite Ms Gerda Kruger, Executive Director: Communications & Marketing Department, UCT

The University of Cape Town's free transportation service, the Jammie Shuttle, has resumed its normal timetable after drivers employed by Sibanye ended their wildcat strike early this afternoon. The drivers have returned to work and all Jammie Shuttle routes are operating normally.

Jammie Shuttle drivers are employed by Sibanye Bus Services, an outsourced service provider to UCT. The drivers' dispute with Sibanye was about salary. The dispute was resolved in a meeting between the drivers and the employer this morning. UCT has no details of the final agreement.
